COMMITTEE MEETS AND TAKES GENERAL INVENTORY

This morning the committees in charge of the matter of securing funds with which to bring the Imperial Glass Co. here to locate in the old Hamilton factory, met and took a general inventory of the business that has been done in the past few days and the amount of money subscribed. The report of the work was very encouraging, but not any more so than it should be. It was found that of all those who have subscribed to the fund, the merchants were by far leading, having given something like $4,000, although they were counted but for $2,500. The hotels and banks it is said do not come up to the amount figured upon. There are as yet a few corporations and individuals to be heard from, which should they give liberally enough should make enough to guarantee the success of the project.

So confident are the committee of success that a sample of an article of agreement was formulated and presented at the meeting this morning, it being acepted.

The committees are still circulating among townspeople and are working hard to get the promise of a few thousand more dollars.

FIREMEN VISIT BELLE VERNON AND WIN GAME

The Firemens baseball team went to Belle Vernon yesterday and took the bunch representing the firemen of that place into camp, after seemingly being defeated in the first few innings. In the first Belle Vernon by hits, and a number of errors by the Charleroi team succeeded in getting the most of their nine scores. After Jolliffe relieved Province, the scoring was stopped. In the fifth inning the visitors got five runs on a number of hits. The final score was 12 to 9.

CHARLEROI IS AT HEAD IN PERCENTAGE

The official averages of the Pa. W. Va. league up to July 1s., show members of the Charleroi team to be in the lead. Clark, of Clarksburg, is the leader in batting having a percentage of 480, but has played in less games, so O'Hara, of Charleroi, is the real leader with a percentage of 429. The averages, batting and fielding, of Charleroi players follow:

A Few Sufficed.

Sir James Crichton-Browne was sent on a mission to Jamaica in connection with the British colonial office. While at Kingston he had an encounter with a colored but very humble official. Sir James, a strenuous sanitarian and an ardent Scot, was keenly interested in the Scottish population of the island. "Do you have many Scotsmen in these parts?" he asked of the official. The darky thought for a moment and then answered, "Not many; just a few, but enough." Sir James collapsed.

A Diplomatic Tramp.

"Why don't you vamoose? I said no."

Plausible.

"The trouble with this tooth," said the dentist, probing it with a long, slender instrument, "is that the nerve is dying."

"It seems to me, doctor," groaned the victim, "you ought to treat the dying with a little more respect."

SHETTLER AN ENIGMA TO THE CHERUBS

Shettler was a little too strong for Charleroi in yesterday's game at Uniontown, holding the chirping, happy Cherubs down to three bingles and one run. Beside that he made the hit that won the game in the fifth, after a man was on base. Bert Humphries was on the mound for Charleroi and was touched for nine safeties.

Charleroi's one lone tally came in the second inning. Dailey smashed one to the right field fence, and when he stopped going was resting safely on the third cushion. Houser tapped a fly to Roberts in middle and Dailey come in.

Uniontown got a start in the opening round. Hilley landed safely, and was followed by Gilligan who also connected. On a long fly to Osborne in middle, Limric, running for Hilly, tried to reach home. Arch threw nice to the plate but Dailey fumbled, allowing the score. In the fifth, Frankenberry singled. Shettler came up and hit over the shortstop's head for what should have been a nice single. May who was playing left field, failed to get near enough to get the bulb on the fly, and when it hit the ground took a bad bound, got past him and went o the left field fence. Both Frank and he scored.

Osborne played a phenominal game in middle field, and kept the Piker's score down. Score.

The last game with the Onions today.

Two lost and three won is pretty good.

The worst we can do this week is an even split.

The first three games next week will be with Clarksburg.

Connellsville gave us a shove by taking Clarksburg over.

Osborne was causing some excitement in middle by sensational work.

O'Hara had his hand hurt in Thursdays game and was compelled to rest yesterday.

Victorious Kruger will probably work for the Onions today as they need the game.

Dailey scored the only run with a three base drive, crossing on an outfield sacrifice.

BOYS GET INTO TROUBLE OVER ENTERING HOUSE

This morning a case was before Justice of the Peace Wilson which will have its ending in the Juvenile Court. Jacob Girard, age 15, and his brother, Charles, age 13 years were brought before the Justice on a charge of entering the house of Julius Reckless on Shady avenue, on the 22nd day of June and taking several articles of value therefrom, after damaging the interior of the house somewhat. Other lads were implicated, but being of such a tender age they were not required to appear before the justice. The youngest was but six years old.

The information was made against the lads by Mr. Reckless, and the two were arrested by Constable Stablein this morning after considerable trouble. The lads were taken to the office of Justice Wilson and Mr. J. K. Tener, a Juvenile Court official, notified. The elder of the two lads, who it is stated is a member of the Dirty Dozen gang, admitted being in the house but would not say he took anyth ing. The younger boy, Charles was finally discharged after a severe warning, but the other will be taken to Washington this afternoon to await a hearing in the Juvenile court, which convenes in about two weeks. He has been before the Justice on other occasions and has caused considerable trouble. He is said to have been the leader of the gang that entered the Reckless home.

Born That Way.

There is perhaps no point on which the librarian and child disagree so entirely as that of the proper condition of the hands. A child whose hands were black with dirt solemnly stated, "I was born that way." Another declared that the doctor said "he must not wash his hands till the weather got warmer." Another whispered, "Teacher, that's the color of my skin."

A boy who brought back a book with its cover soiled and greasy refused to pay the fine and finally brought his mother in to speak in his behalf. We had been very unjust and unkind to her boy, she said, "for he is very careful. He puts his book in the icebox, where the baby can't get it, and nothing but our food and Willie's books ever goes in that icebox."—Library Journal.

Shettlers home run was one of those clean singles. May ran in to get the drive but could not reach it. The ball rolled to the fence and went for a homer.

ALL WORKING IN HARMONY FOR MERCHANT'S PICNIC

In line with the other work preparatory to the Merchant's Picnic and Outing at Eldora Park, Wednesday August 19, the committees other than that on sports, on whose part of the work a article was published yesterday, are working and getting everything in perfect readiness for the big event. While they may not have so much to do at this time as the sports committee, they are getting ready for the hard part of their labor which will come on the day.

The committee on refreshments have not much to report as yet, but assure that their share of the work will be well taken care of. The transportation committee are arranging for special cars to carry the people to and from the park, the schedule to be announced later. The reception committee as yet have had no work to do, but the members of it are preparing for the day and will do their share.

A large number of citizens of this city and nearby towns are eagerly awating the day, and many a good wife is already studying what she will put in her basket, what kind of cake to make, where to get the chicken, and all the rest of the minor details, while the man of the house is helping her in whatever way possible. Indications are that an immense crowd will be at the park on that day. Stores and shops will be closed and all go in for a day of sport.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS AT ELDORA PARK

Tomorow will be a big day at Eldora Park. Maddox, a high wire performer, direct from Luna Park and the Fulton Quartet will be the attractions. Admssion free.

Turner and the Doctor.

When Turner, the famous painter, was dying at Chelsea he sent in despair for a Ramsgate doctor who had done him some good during his recent stay at that place and who he hoped might take a different view of his case from that which the London physicians had expressed. The doctor arrived and confirmed the opinion that the artist had very little time longer to live. "Wait a bit," said Turner to the doctor. "You have had nothing to eat and drink yet, have you?" "No, but that's of no consequence." "But it is," replied the painter. "Go downstairs, and you will find some refreshment, and there is some fine brown sherry—don't spare it—and then come up and see me again." The doctor refreshed himself and then came back to the patient. "Now, then," said Turner, "what is it? Do you still think so badly of my case?" The doctor regretfully said he could not alter his former opinion. The artist shook his shoulders, turned his face to the wall and never spoke again! —Dundee Advertiser.

A Rich Woman's Closet.

"The nearest approach to a Bluebeard's closet that I ever saw," said a woman the other day, "was in the country house of one of New York's most fashionable women.

"I didn't know her, but in a queer, roundabout way I was once shown over the house and saw Mrs. V.'s private apartments. I pretty nearly fainted when I walked into a room where a dozen or more women were apparently hanging from the ceiling.

"When I came to I found that what I had taken to be a choice collection of female corpses was really a lot of manikins. Mrs. V. had them made after her own measurements, and her choicest costumes were kept on them when not in use.

"Her maid would fasten a gown on to a manikin, put something over it to keep the dust off and then by means of a rope and pulley draw the whole thing to the ceiling. It was a fine arrangement, but looked as if Bluebeard had been around."—New York Sun.

A Great Art in Little.

"Is there really any art in conversing?"

"Of course; always say small things in a big way and big things in a small way."—Minneapolis Journal.

Outstripped It.

"As I recall things, you once had a future before you," said the old friend.

"Yes," replied the fate tossed man, "but, you see, I lived so fast that I got ahead of it."

Vacation Order of Month.

This month of August is the month when man, housed nearly the whole year, working hard at a monotonous task for eleven and one half months, takes his brief much needed rest.

Change of scene, change of occupation, a breath of air, a sight of the fields and forests, a whiff of the ocean—how we pine for them, how brief they are after all! We have them for a few days, long enough to make us wonder how we live without them. In the fierce business conditions that prevail now in civilized lands we can only be natural by exception. As a general thing we are driven on our tasks.

What drives us? Rapacious employers one will say. Insatiable greed of our own, another will tell us.

No, not these. Love drives, love leads, love sustains and helps us in our daily efforts. Love for our wives love for our children, love for our kin, desire to provide for them, to nature to protect and sustain them. 'Tis love that makes the world go round.

We love them just as much when we go away for a holiday, to build up again the depleted strength only that we may pour it out again in their service. It is the great parental affection that makes heroes of the humblest and leads us to seek better conditions for our children than we received from our fathers.

MAN'S HEADGEAR.

From the Primitive Cap to the Glossy High Hat of Today.

Earliest of all forms of headgear was the cap. The hat did not really come into common use till the seventeenth century. In the time of Charles I. the queer high sugar loaf shaped hat came into fashion. It was wound with a rich band and trimmed with a feather. Constant balancing of the head was necessary to keep it on. The hat was taken up by the Puritans, who satisfied their bitter consciences by discarding the frivolous band and the wicked feather.

Charles II. brought the French periwig into England, and the tall hat went out to make way for a low, broad brimmed thing, gorgeous with feathers and gimcracks. These broad brims became broader and broader. At last it became necessary to turn them up. First this was done at the back, finally according to the wearer's idea.

Out of this extravagant style of headgear grew the cocked hat. The footmen and the liveried coachmen of many European nations still wear this style of headgear. During Queen Anne's time the cocked hat was the hat of the gentleman. The correct fashion was to carry it under the arm as much as possible.

The French revolution, which took off so many heads that had worn the cocked hat, took off the cocked hat too. In its place the crescent shape became the style, partly by force. The direct ancestor of that dreadful thing, the high hat of today, was the noble and sturdy beaver. Beavers went out of fashion largely because the supply of material became exhausted.—London Answers.

NATURAL SOAP.

The Queer Fruit of a Tree That Grows In Algeria.

Soap grows on trees in Algeria. The soap tree is ornamental and reaches a height of fifty feet. It begins to bear fruit when six years old. The wood is close grained, takes a good polish and is admirably suited for furniture. The average income from a tree is $10 to $20 a year. The composition of the fruit consists of a nut shaped hull in which is a seed. In the hull exists the soapy matter in the proportion of 30 to 40 per cent of the bulk of the hull. The soap principle is set free by the shredding of the hull and using it with water just as if it were a piece of soap. A beautiful lather is the result, and the cleansing qualities are such that there is no soap made by human process that can compare with them. For toilet purposes the same applies. The hull can be made into a powder and the powder into a cake, so as to make the use of it easier. It can also be made into a liquid for hair wash, dentifrice and various other preparations. Seeds of the Algerian soap tree have been imported to the United States, and soap trees have been discovered in Florida indigenous to the soil. The seed has a kernel which contains a fixed oil in every respect preferable to the best imported olive oil, either for eating or culinary purposes, and also for all kinds of industrial products in which the olive oil is used. The yield in oil is twice that of the olive fruit.—Baltimore American.

Why They Don't Desert.

"Instances of desertion from the army in Mexico are very rare and for the best of reasons," said Senor Jose de Minaldeh of Nueva Leon.

"The reason lies in the almost sure capture of the fugitive and the certainty that he will get not one but numerous floggings on his bare back. These lashings are done in the presence of the comrades of the deserter, and when the men see how great is the suffering of the miserable wretch who tried in vain to quit his military obligations they are forced to conclude that it is better to stick to the army than to undergo such a terrible ordeal."—Baltimore American.

Audiences Have Changed.

"They don't write comic operas like they used to," said Mr Stonington Barnes. "They used to have jokes then that made people laugh."

"Yes," answered the manager, "but you must remember that in those days they had audiences who could be made to laugh."—Memphis Commercial Appeal

Not Deluded.

SPONGE DIVERS.

Hardly a Single Caphander of Tripoli Escapes Paralysis.

There are a great many varieties of sponges, most of which are found in the warmer parts of the ocean. The bath sponges are chiefly obtained from the eastern half of the Mediterranean, where they occur at all depths down to 200 fathoms and are obtained by diving, dredging or harpooning.

Writing in Harper's Magazine, C. W. Furlong gives an account of the work of the Greek sponge divers off the coast of Tripoli, in north Africa. Attacks by sharks and dogfish have gradually frightened away the common divers, who dive naked with a piece of flat marble and a line, and the field is left clear for the "caphanders," as the men are called who use air pump, suit and helmet.

The greatest enemy of the caphander is paralysis, hardly a single diver escaping from it in some form or other. The great cause of this disease is the sudden relief of pressure due to the rapid ascent, the dangerous symptoms appearing when the diver emerges into the fresh air.

Strange as it may seem, a partially paralyzed diver on descending into the waters recovers the use of his limbs again, and his circulation becomes normal. To battle with this scourge the Greek government has issued regulations as to the depths to which a diver shall go and has also provided a hospital ship and a sponge divers' hospital on shore.

Mrs. J. H. McCormick, living at 1061½ Hall Ave., Washington, Pa., says: "It is several years since my husband was cured of kidney disease by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. He suffered for some time with severe pains in his back and was so lame at times that it was impossible for him to attend to his work. The action of his kidneys was very irregular and his general health was very poor. He began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The first box benefited him so much that he continued their use. The symptoms were gradually banished and he was restored to perfect health. He has had no return of the trouble and is a great advocate of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Redeemed Pledges.

By J. LUDLUM LEE.

Copyrighted, 1906, by Associated Literary Press.

Solomon Isaacs had been counted a prosperous pawnbroker for years. His little shop, located on the corner of a busy thoroughfare, showed a big profit, while large concerns in the neighborhood had failed during the hard times.

Real estate sharks had made tempting offers to Solomon for his precious corner, but he assured them all that he was doing very well and did not care to sell. Indeed, Solomon boasted of many fashionable customers, and his showcases often displayed gorgeous gems, offered for sale at temptingly low prices.

Business seldom started in until after 10 in the morning, so Solomon was standing in the open doorway smoking a cigar when his attention was attracted to a fashionably dressed young woman looking in his window. Suddenly she caught his glance and darted in the doorway.

"I want to get this watch out of pawn," she said as Mr. Isaacs followed her into the shop. She handed him the ticket.

"Out early, ain't you?" suggested Isaacs as he glanced her over, wondering how she had happened to pawn a watch for $5. Clearly some one had arranged the matter for her. Isaacs never forgot a business face.

He took the ticket and went to the back of the store in search of the pledged article, and Nita Norcross spent the time in looking into a tempting case of old jewelry. One old locket attracted her and on his return she asked its price.

Isaacs took out the locket slowly, still searching the girl's face. The price seemed reasonable, and she bought it. Turning to leave the shop, she met face to face a huge policeman and a lithe youth. Nita's heart went out to the latter. In her imagination she pictured the young man as wayward and pawning, perhaps stealing, jewelry. Surely he must be a thief, or why his police escort? The suspected youth looked at her sharply as he passed into the shop, and Nita hurried home with her purchase. Once in her room, she told her maid to send the laundress upstairs. She wished to speak to her privately.

"WELL, I BOUGHT IT," SHE FINALLY ANSWERED.

"Here is your watch, Mrs. Berry," said Nita as she handed the timepiece to her washerwoman, who began to weep copiously on a gingham apron. "I hope you will never have to part with it again. The next time you need money for sickness or any serious trouble come to me. Never pawn anything again. It is a terrible habit," continued Nita. Then, recalling the picture of the handsome youth, she added: "It teaches young men where they can get extra money and oftener gets them into trouble than out of it. Now run along to your work and never think of it again." And Mrs. Berry, clasping the cheap yet precious watch of her dead husband to her heart, went back to her tubs.

Several weeks later Nita Norcross was invited to the clambake given at Oak Ridge by her old friends the Clydes. Mrs. Clyde introduced her to the many new friends they had met since moving to Oak Ridge, and soon supper was in full swing.

Encircling the round table were thirty men and girls, and Nita casually looked them over. Directly opposite she recognized a new face strangely familiar. Where had she seen that man before? He had an utmost impertinent smile, and, look where she would, their glances seemed always to cross.

Supper was over, and the guests were strolling about the grounds. The man with the familiar-strange face came up to Nita as she stood beneath a clump of lanterns.

"This is Miss Norcross, I believe," he said. "I am Mr. Hildredth. We were introduced early in the evening, but no doubt you did not catch my name. Have you seen the sunken lake of which Clyde is so proud?"

Once away from the crowd, they found a comfortable little seat along the water's edge, and the moonlight fell clear upon them.

"Gorgeous night, isn't it?" suggested all Nita, the could not explain why she had this unconscious constrained feeling when with this man.

"Billy," he replied. "May I light a cigarette just to keep the bugs away?"

"You certainly may," agreed Nita.

"I wonder if you would think me frightfully rude," began Mr. Hildredth, "if I were to ask you where you ran against the locket you have on your neck, Miss Norcross. It's a perfect beauty. I have seen but one other like it, and that belonged to my mother."

Nita blushed and nervously twirled the locket which hung on a fine chain about her neck.

"Why, I bought it," she finally answered.

"Yes, of course, but where?"

The silence which followed was painful, and Hildredth continued:

"You see, my mother's locket was stolen along with a lot of other jewelry that my valet relieved me of about a year ago, and I've spent hundreds of dollars and a world of time trying to locate the stuff. What he took of mine I don't care a rap about, but my mother's keepsakes—well, you could understand that would be a different thing. In my mother's locket there is a picture of a child—a picture of me. Whom do you carry in yours, Miss Norcross?"

Hildredth waited several minutes for his answer. Slowly the girl took the locket from her throat and reached it to him.

"Open it," she almost whispered.

He did so and revealed the picture of a curly headed child of about six, and while Hildredth looked long at the picture the girl told the story of how she came by it.

"And isn't it absurd," she was saying. "I thought you were a thief that day when I saw you with the policeman."

"And I," said Hildreth, "though you were a society girl getting extra money to play the races or go to fortune tellers or some equally wicked dissipation." Then, changing his tone entirely, he continued: "I hate to ask the return of this, but mother valued it above price. But as she is now abroad I want you to show you hold me no ill will by putting it back on your throat and wearing it while you are at Oak Ridge. When we part"—

He extended the trinket to her, and his hand touched hers. Without argument she clasped the fine chain once more about her neck. Nothing was said by either, but Lawrence lighted another cigarette and lit hard.

"I think we had better join the crowd," said Nita, "or they'll be instituting a searching party for us."

The next days and for many days after during Nita's stay at Oak Ridge, Lawrence Hildredth found an excuse to run over in his motor or to sail over in his boat to the Clyde lodge. The last evening of Nita's visit had come, and she and Lawrence were once more sitting by the water's edge. Nearly a month had passed, and another moon had come to shed its rays upon Oak Ridge.

"Tomorrow I am going home," Nita said "so I will give you back the locket tonight. Your mother will be home soon, too, I hear."

He took it from her with reluctant hand.

"Nita," Lawrence's voice was tenderness itself. "There is just one woman to whom my mother would give that locket—my wife. Will you take me, Nita? Take my locket and my love? Tell me, Nita, that you love me."

Nita looked straight into his eyes.

"Larrie, dear, I do love you, and I always will."

He clasped the locket about her throat again, pledging it to her for life, and the kiss he received in payment seemed priceless.

From Welsh to Spanish.

A very long time ago the British government ordered that English should be taught in Welsh schools. As a result, a colony of persecuted Welsh miners fled from the British tyranny and settled in the deserts of Patagonia. These men were heroes, and with most magnificent courage they dared to live in a desert where not a plant would grow, where the water was brackish and the heat intolerable. They were surrounded by wild tribes of hostile savages and made them warm friends; they were ruled by a foreign government and became loyal citizens.

Through long years of want and famine they never despaired. They have turned the desert into a beautiful fertile country, have become rich, number 3,000 people, have extended their string of settlements right across South America, own a paying railway and ship large crops of wheat, wool, ostrich feathers and guanaco skins.

They left Wales to escape the tyranny of the English language and now, rather than talk Welsh, they converse largely of their freedom in excellent Spanish.

Germs, Their Friends and Foes.

Germs are powerless to affect a healthy body in which the vital resistance is maintained by good habits of living. Alcohol, tobacco and other such drugs, whether narcotic or stimulative in their effects, are aids and comforts to our invisible enemies. Too much food, especially hearty food such as meat and beans, forms supplies for the commissary department of the enemy instead of for the brigades of white corpuscles. On the other hand, every breath drawn deeply into the lungs of fresh, sun warmed air is a direct blow struck at our foes and on the side of our defenders. Every sip of pure water aids the forces of life. So, too, does every motion in walking, running and other exercises—when exercise is not excessive. Every mouthful of pure food adds fuel to the flame of life.—Success Magazine.

Making More Than a Living

Nearly every man who works steadily makes more than a living. During these slow times the men who have saved something appreciate what it is to have something laid away for a rainy day. A few cents a day soon counts up, and when savings are placed in a bank at a tidy interest the sum soon grows to proportions that make it a safeguard against want when work is not plentiful. Figure up how much more than a living you are making now, and place the difference in this bank. Four per cent. interest paid in savings department.

IDOLS OF THE HINDOOS

There Are Hundreds of Millions of Them in India.

THE FAME OF JUGGERNAUT.

This Idol Has Been Worshiped About Two Thousand Years, and His National Temple Is on the Sands of Puri—The Three Monster Cars.

If I were asked to describe India the first remark that would spring from my lips would be, "It is a land of idols." It would be impossible to compute the number of idols that there must be at the present time in India. The Hindoos pretend to have 333,000,000 gods, and these are represented by innumerable idols, so that we are quite bewildered with the thought of taking the census of the idols of India. The population of the whole Indian empire is now about 300,000,000, and possibly the country contains ten times as many idols as people.

Benares is the great center of the idol making business, though in all parts of India the trade flourishes. Potters the day through may be seen in the sacred city molding images of clay for temporary use. Sculptors also may be found producing representatives of the gods in stone or marble. Carpenters, moreover, make great wooden idols for the temples, and workers in metal—goldsmiths, coppersmiths and brass workers—turn out more or less highly finished specimens in their respective metals.

When speaking of idols it should be borne in mind that the images turned out by the potter, sculptor, carver or manufacturer are not considered sacred or fit to be worshiped until certain mystic words have been uttered over them by a priest. The ceremony of "the giving of life," as it is called, to the image is a very solemn affair, and when it is done the idol is regarded as holy and must ever afterward be approached and treated with the utmost reverence.

Out of the many millions of so called gods in India, all of whom are counted worthy of worship, three are regarded as specially sacred and form the Hindoo triad or trinity. They are respectively Brahma, Vishnu and Siva. Of those it is stated the second person of the trinity only has been represented on this earth by human incarnations. Through one or all of these gods the Hindoos believe they may obtain salvation. Brahma represents the way of salvation by wisdom, Vishnu by faith and Siva by works. It is immaterial which method is adopted, as they all lead to the same goal.

Juggernaut is perhaps the most famous name among all the Hindoo idols, inasmuch as his fame has gone forth into every land. His temple is situated on the sandy shores of Orissa, washed by the wild waves of the bay of Bengal. The worship of Juggernaut dates back nearly 2,000 years, and Orissa has been the holy land of the Hindoos from that time till the present day.

Sir William Hunter, who was one of the greatest authorities on things East Indian, says in a wonderfully graphic description of the temple of Juggernaut: "On the inhospitable sands of Puri, a place of swamps and inundations, the Hindoo religion and Hindoo superstitution have stood at bay for eighteen centuries against the world. Here is the national temple whither the people flock to worship from every province of India. There is the gate of heaven whither thousands of pilgrims come to die, lulled to this last sleep by the roar of the eternal ocean."

Well, I saw on one occasion that marvelous sight, the dragging of Juggernaut's car and the cars of his brother and sister. The three idols are inseparable, and ugly things they are, being nothing but huge logs of wood coarsely fashioned into human shape, but without arms or legs.

Juggernaut's car stands forty-one feet high and has fourteen enormous wheels. The other two cars are just a little smaller. The great cars have to be dragged a certain distance—half a mile or more from the temple—and the god will not allow horses or elephants to undertake the work, but calls upon his faithful worshipers to do it themselves. Immense ropes, or, rather, cables, are attached to the cars, and at the word of command from the priests thousands of men and even women and children rush forward and seize the ropes and range themselves in order and the next moment are straining and pulling at the cumbersome conveyances, which at length move with a heavy, creaking noise.

Never shall I forget the sight. The road was filled with tens of thousands of lookers-on, all wild with excitement, and the fanatics who held the ropes were dragging the cars along with frenzied zeal. Every now and then there would be a stop that the men might rest, I supposed, but instead of resting they took to jumping in the air and to whirling themselves around like dancing dervishes and shouting at the top of their breath: "Victory! Victory to Juggernaut!"

Once on a time infatuated worshipers would throw themselves under the wheels of the mighty car that they might be crushed to death, counting it a privilege and a joy thus to perish. Some might do it today if the paternal British government did not provide against such catastrophes by taking all due precaution.—John J. Pool, B. D., F. R. G. S., in Los Angeles Times.

Queer Auctions.

A Dutch auction at Cape Town is frequently exciting. If a house is to be sold, the auctioneer offers "50 golden sovereigns for the man who first bids £5,000." Nobody bids. A pause, and then "50 golden sovereigns for the man who first bids £4,900." This is kept up until a bid is secured. But it by no means follows that the house is sold to this bidder. No, the auctioneer is then at it again. Say that £4,400 is the first bid. The auctioneer cries, "There are 25 golden sovereigns for the first man who has the courage to bid £4,600." Perhaps no one has it. Then £25 is offered for a £4,550 bid. If there is eventually no bid above the £4,400, the man who made that bid is saddled with the house. Otherwise he pockets his bonus and gets off free of it all.—Westminster Gazette.

Gone to Hongkong.

Some time ago a large tea shop was opened in a town near London. To attract customers it was announced that each purchaser of a pound of tea would receive a check for a shilling to buy goods on a certain date. The proprietor did a flourishing trade till the day came for the checks to be presented. Crowds of customers came and were drearily disappointed to see the shutters down and on them a big poster, which read:

"Our compliments to our customers, and we beg to state that we have gone to Hongkong for more tea."—London Express.

Mannish.

Mr. Dubley—How awfully mannish she is! Miss Smart—She is, indeed. Mr. Dubley—Yes, and the funny part of it is she thinks people admire her for being that way. It's queer she doesn't realize that people are only laughing at her. Miss Smart—Well, she's mannish even to that extent.—Philadelphia Press.

Explicit.

One of Manchester's sextons in making his report of burials is explicit to a commendable degree. For instance, such entries as this occur:

"Died, John Green, male; aged three days; unmarried."—London Tit-Bits.

HERE AND THERE

Arden, the Meadow Lands Mine company's town at its mine a mile north of Arden station, on the Chartiers railway, was visited by a big blaze at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. The fire originated in a house occupied by Frank Nitchel and family, but what caused it does not appear to be known.

John H. King, a life long resident of Fayette county, and a well known farmer of South Union township, died yesterday aged 88 years. Deceased was born on the Coley farm May 8, 1820. He was one of the pioneers of Lower Fayette county and was engaged for years as a wagoner on the old National pike between Uniontown and Cumberland.

A bitter legal fight will likely be made to save Mrs. Ida Palmer, a Canonsburg woman against whom a formal charge of murder may be made for the death of her husband, Frank Palmer, who was fatally shot Sunday afternoon. Yesterday James B. Scope, a brother of Mrs. Palmer, was in Washinngton and employed Attorney Alex M. Templeton, as council for the defense. in case charges are preferred against Mrs. Palmer. Scope comes from Clearfield county. He is a justice of the peace and resides at Bluehall.

Ten townships of Washintgon county have taken creditable action in establishing high schools. Special appropriations are due all such institutions, providing certain provisions are followed in the choice of a principal, and the amount of money appropriated is governed also by the length of the course adopted.

Monongahela's public schools will oepn on Monday, September 14, two weeks later than had been the original intention. However, on account of Old Home week during the week beginning September 7, it was decided to postpone the opening. Promotions will be made on Monday and Tuesday of the opening week and new pupils will be received Wednesday. Everything will then be in readiness for the school routine of recitations, etc.

It is stated that since the idleness of the Carnegie mills at Donora rents in that town have suffered a material reduction. In some instances houses that rented for $25 a month have been cut to $13.

William, Vactor, a young colored man of South Canonsburg, lays claim to being the champion groundhog hunter of this community. Out of 27 goundhogs seen on six hunting trips he killed 24 groundhogs. There is a ready market for the animals in town, and they sell at from 35 cents to 50 cents each.

Considerable justifiable complaint is heard from time to time about the neglect of the supervisors in this part of the country to provide the finger boards that the law calls for at the various crossings. Not one in ten of the crossings or forks of roads has anything that will direct the stranger traveler when he arrives at the parting of the ways. In this country where the roads run helter skelter without fixed directions a stranger goes but a few miles until he is completly at sea.

COMMITTEE MEETS AND TAKES GENERAL INVENTORY

This morning the committees in charge of the matter of securing funds with which to bring the Imperal Glass Co. here to locate in the old Hamilton factory, met and took a general inventory of the business that has been done in the past few days and the amount of money subscribed. The report of the work was very encouraging, but not any more so than all those who have subscribed to the fund, the merchants were by far leading, having given something like $4,000, although they were counted but for $2,500. The hotels and banks it is said do not come up to the amount figured upon. There are as yet a few corporations and individuals to be heard from, which should they give liberally enough should make enough to guarantee the success of the project.

So confident are the committee of success that a sample of an article of agreement was formulated and presented at the meeting this morning, it

The committees are still circulating among townspeople and are working hard to get the promise of a few thousand more dollars.

In the fifth inning the visitors got five runs on a number of hits. The final score was 12 to 9.

A Few Sufficed.

Sir James Crichton-Browne was sent on a mission to Jamaica in connection with the British colonial office. While at Kingston he had an encounter with a colored but very humble official. Sir James, a strenuous sanitarian and an ardent Scot, was keenly interested in the Scottish population of the island. "Do you have many Scotsmen in these parts?" he asked of the official. The darky thought for a moment and then answered, "Not many; just a few, but enough." Sir James collapsed.

Plausible.

"The trouble with this tooth," said the dentist, probing it with a long, slender instrument, "is that the nerve is dying."

"It seems to me, doctor," groaned the victim, "you ought to treat the dying with a little more respect."

SHETTLER AN ENIGMA TO THE CHERUBS

Shettler was a little too strong for Charleroi in yesterday's game at Uniontown, holding the chirping, happy Cherubs down to three bingles and one run. Beside that he made the hit that won the game in the fifth, after a man was on base. Bert Humphries was on the mound for Charleroi and was touched for nine safeties.

Charleroi's one lone tally came in the second inning. Dailey smashed he stopped going was resting safely on the third cushion. Houser tapped a fly to Roberts in middle and Dailey come in.

Uniontown got a start in the opening round. Hilley landed safely, and was followed by Gilligan who also [illegible]. On a long fly to Osborne in middle, Limric, running for Hilly, tried to reach home. Arch threw nice to the plate but Dailey fumbled, allowing the score. In the fifth, Frankenberry singled. Shettler came up and hit over the shortstop's head for what should have been a nice single. May who was playing left field, failed to get near enough to get the ball on the fly, and when it hit the ground took a bad bound, got past him and went to the left field fence. Both Frank and he scored.

Osborne played a phenominal game in middle field, and kept the Piker's score down. Score.

The last game with the Onions today.

Two lost and three won is pretty good.

The worst we can do this week is an even split.

The first three games next week will be with Clarksburg.

Connellsville gave us a shove by taking Clarksburg over.

Osborne was causing some excitement in middle by sensational work.

O'Hara had his hand hurt in Thursdays game and was compelled to rest yesterday.

Victorious Kruger will probably work for the Onions today as they need the game.

Dailey scored the only run with a three base drive, crossing on an outfield sacrifice.

BOYS GET INTO TROUBLE OVER ENTERING HOUSE

This morning a case was before Justice of the Peace Wilson which will have its ending in the Juvenile Court. Jacob Girard, age 15, and his brother, Charles, age 13 years were brought before the Justice on a charge of entering the house of Julius Reckless on Shady avenue, on the 22nd day of June and taking several articles of value therefrom, after damaging the interior of the house somewhat. Other a tender age they were not required to appear before the justice. The youngest was but six years old.

The information was made against the lads by Mr. Reckless, and the two were arrested by Constable Stablein this morning after considerable trouble. The lads were taken to the office of Justice Wilson and Mrs. J. E. Toner, a Juvenile Court official notified. The elder of the two lads, who it is stated is a member of the Dirty Dozen gang, admitted being in the house but would not say he took anything. The younger boy, Charles was finally discharged after a severe warning, but the other will be taken to Washington this afternoon to await a hearing in the Juvenile court, which convenes in about two weeks. He has been before the Justice on other occasions and has caused considerable trouble. He is said to have been the leader of the gang that entered the Reckless home.

Born That Way.

There is perhaps no point on which the librarian and child disagree so entirely as that of the proper condition of the hands. A child whose hands were black with dirt solemnly stated, "I was born that way." Another declared that the doctor said "he must not wash his hands till the weather got warmer." Another whispered, "Teacher, that's the color of my skin."

ALL WORKING IN HARMONY FOR MERCHANT'S PICNIC

In line with the other work preparatory to the Merchant's Picnic and Outing at Eldora Park, Wednesday August 19, the committees other than that on sports, on whose part of the work a article was published yesterday, are working and getting everything in perfect readiness for the big event. While they may not have so much to do at this time as the sports committee, they are getting ready for the hard part of their labor which will come on the day.

The committee on [illegible] have not much to report as yet, but assure that their share of the work will be well taken care of. The transportation committee are arranging for special cars to carry the people to and from the park, the schedule to be announced later. The reception committee as yet have had no work to do, but the members of it are preparing for the day and will do their share.

A large number of citizens of this city and nearby towns are eagerly awating the day, and many a good wife is already studying what she will put in her basket, what kind of cake to make, where to get the chicken, and all the rest of the minor details, while [illegible] of the women is helping her in whatever way possible. Indications are that an immense crowd will be at the park on that day. Stores and shops will be closed and all go in for a day of sport.

Turner and the Doctor.

When Turner, the famous painter, was dying at Chelsea he sent in despair for a Ramsgate doctor who had done him some good during his recent stay at that place and who, he hoped, might take a different view of his case from that which the London physicians had expressed. The doctor arrived and confirmed the opinion that the artist had very little time longer to live. "Wait a bit," said Turner to the doctor. "You have had nothing to eat and drink yet, have you?" "No, but that's of no consequence." "But it is," replied the painter. "Go downstairs, and you will find some refreshment, and there is some fine brown sherry—don't spare it—and then come up and see me again." The doctor refreshed himself and then came back to the patient. "Now, then," said Turner, "what is it? Do you still think so badly of my case?" The doctor regretfully said he could not alter his former opinion. The artist shook his shoulders, turned his face to the wall and never spoke again.—Dundee Advertiser.

A Rich Woman's Closet.

"The nearest approach to a Bluebeard's closet that I ever saw," said a woman the other day, "was in the country house of one of New York's most fashionable women.

"I didn't know her, but in a queer, roundabout way I was once shown over the house and saw Mrs. V.'s private apartments. I pretty nearly fainted when I walked into a room where a dozen or more women were apparently hanging from the ceiling.

"When I came to I found that what I had taken to be a choice collection of female corpses was really a lot of manikins. Mrs. V. had them made after her own measurements, and her choicest costumes were kept on them when not in use.

"Her maid would fasten a gown on to a manikin, put something over it to keep the dust off and then by means of a rope and pulley draw the whole thing to the ceiling. It was a fine arrangement, but looked as if Bluebeard had been around."—New York Sun.

"Yes," replied the fate tossed man, "but, you see, I lived so fast that I got ahead of it."

Vacation Order of Month.

This month of August is the month when man, housed nearly the whole year, working hard at a monotonous task for eleven and one half months, takes his brief much needed rest.

Change of scene, change of occupation, a breath of air, a sight of the fields and forests, a whiff of the ocean—how we pine for them, how brief they are after all! We have them for a few days, long enough to make us wonder how we live without them. In the fierce business conditions that prevail now in civilized lands we can only be natural by exception. As a general thing we are driven on our tasks.

What drives us? Rapacious employers one will say. Insatiable greed of our own, another will tell us.

No, not these. Love drives, love leads, love sustains and helps us in our daily efforts. Love for our wives love for our children, love for our kin, desire to provide for them, to nature to protect and sustain them. 'Tis love that makes the world go round.

We love them just as much when we go away for a holiday to build up again the depleted strength only that we may pour it out again in their service. It is the great parental affection that makes heroes of the humblest and leads us to seek better conditions for our children than we received from our fathers.

MAN'S HEADGEAR.

From the Primitive Cap to the Glossy High Hat of Today.

Earliest of all forms of headgear was the cap. The hat did not really come into common use till the seventeenth century. In the time of Charles I. the queer high sugar loaf shaped hat came into fashion. It was wound with a rich band and trimmed with a feather. Constant balancing of the head was necessary to keep it on. The hat was taken up by the Puritans, who satisfied their bitter consciences by discarding the frivolous band and the wicked feather.

Charles II. brought the French periwig into England, and the tall hat went out to make way for a low, broad brimmed thing, gorgeous with feathers and gimcracks. These broad brims became broader and broader. At last it became necessary to turn them up. First this was done at the back, finally according to the wearer's idea.

Out of this extravagant style of headgear grew the cocked hat. The footmen and the liveried coachmen of many European nations still wear this style of headgear. During Queen Anne's time the cocked hat was the hat of the gentleman. The correct fashion was possible.

The French revolution, which took off so many heads that had worn the cocked hat, took off the cocked hat too. In its place the crescent shape became the style, partly by force. The direct ancestor of that dreadful thing, the high hat of today, was the noble and sturdy beaver. Beavers went out of fashion largely because the supply of material became exhausted.—London Answers.

NATURAL SOAP.

The Queer Fruit of a Tree That Grows In Algeria.

Soap grows on trees in Algeria. The soap tree is ornamental and reaches a height of fifty feet. It begins to bear fruit when six years old. The wood is close grained, takes a good polish and is admirably suited for furniture. The average income from a tree is $10 to $20 a year. The composition of the fruit consists of a nut shaped hull in which is a seed. In the hull exists the soapy matter in the proportion of 30 to 40 per cent of the bulk of the hull. The soap principle is set free by the shredding of the hull and using it with water just as if it were a piece of soap. A beautiful lather is the result, and the cleansing qualities are such that there is no soap made by human process that can compare with them. For toilet purposes the same applies. The hull can be made into a powder and the powder into a cake, so as to make the use of it easier. It can also be made into a liquid for hair wash, dentifrice and various other preparations. Seeds of the Algerian soap tree have been imported to the United States, and soap trees have been discovered in Florida indigenous to the soil. The seed has a kernel which contains a fixed oil in every respect preferable to the best imported olive oil, either for eating or culinary purposes, and also for all kinds of industrial products in which the olive oil is used. The yield in oil is twice that of the olive fruit.—Baltimore American.

Why They Don't Desert.

"Instances of desertion from the army in Mexico are very rare and for the best of reasons," said School Inspector de Minaldez of Nueva Leon.

"The reason lies in the almost sure capture of the fugitive and the certainty that he will get not one but numerous floggings on his bare back. These lashings are done in the presence of the comrades of the deserter, and when the men see how great is the suffering of the miserable wretch who tried in vain to quit his military obligations they are forced to conclude that it is better to stick to the army than to undergo such a terrible ordeal."—Baltimore American.

Audiences Have Changed.

"They don't write comic operas like they used to," said Mr. Stormington Barnes. "They used to have jokes then that made people laugh."

"Yes," answered the manager, "but you must remember that in those days they had audiences who could be made to laugh."—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Not Deluded.

"Do you want employment?"

"Lady," answered Plodding Pete, "you means well, but you can't make work sound any more invitin' by usin' words of three syllables."—Washington Star.

SPONGE DIVERS.

Hardly a Single Caphander of Tripoli Escapes Paralysis.

There are a great many varieties of sponges, most of which are found in the warmer parts of the ocean. The bath sponges are chiefly obtained from the eastern half of the Mediterranean, where they occur at all depths down to 200 fathoms and are obtained by diving, dredging or harpooning.

Writing in Harper's Magazine, C. W. Furlong gives an account of the work of the Greek sponge divers off the coast of Tripoli, in north Africa. Attacks by sharks and dogfish have gradually frightened away the common divers, who dive naked with a piece of flat marble and a line, and the field is left clear for the "caphanders," as the men are called who use air pump, suit and helmet.

The greatest enemy of the caphander is paralysis, hardly a single diver escaping from it in some form or other. The great cause of this disease is the sudden relief of pressure due to the rapid ascent, the dangerous symptoms appearing when the diver emerges into the fresh air.

Strange as it may seem, a partially paralyzed diver on descending into the waters recovers the use of his limbs again, and his circulation becomes normal. To battle with this scourge the Greek government has issued regulations as to the depths to which a diver shall go and has also provided a hospital ship and a sponge divers' hospital on shore.

He suffered for some time with severe pains in his back and was so lame at times that it was impossible for him to attend to his work. The action of his kidneys was very irregular and his general health was very poor. He began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The first box benefited him so much that he continued their use. Redeemed Pledges.

By J. LUDLUM LEE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Solomon Isaacs had been counted a prosperous pawnbroker for years. His little shop, located on the corner of a busy thoroughfare, showed a big profit, while large concerns in the neighborhood had failed during the hard times.

Real estate sharks had made tempting offers to Solomon for his precious corner, but he assured them all that he was doing very well and did not care to sell. Indeed, Solomon boasted of many fashionable customers, and his showcases often displayed gorgeous gems, offered for sale at tempringly low prices.

Business seldom started in until after 10 in the morning, so Solomon was standing in the open doorway smoking a cigar when his attention was attracted to a fashionably dressed young she met face to face a huge policeman and a little youth. Nita's heart went out to the latter. In her imagination she pictured the young man as wayward and pawning perhaps stealing jewelry. Surely he must be a thief, or why his police escort? The suspected youth looked at her sharply as he passed into the shop, and Nita hurried home with her purchase. Once in her room, she told her maid to send the laundress upstairs. She wished to speak to her privately.

"Here is your watch, Mrs. Berry," said Nita as she handed the timepiece to her washerwoman, who began to weep copiously on a gingham apron. "I hope you will never have to part with it again. The next time you need money for sickness or any serious trouble come to me. Never pawn anything again. It is a terrible habit," continued Nita. Then, recalling the picture of the handsome youth, she added: "It teaches young men where they can get extra money and oftener gets them into trouble than out of it. Now run along to your work and never think of it again." And Mrs. Berry, clasping the cheap yet precious watch of her dead husband to her heart, went back to her tubs.

Several weeks later Nita Norcross was invited to the clambake given at Oak Ridge by her old friends the Clydes. Mrs. Clyde introduced her to the many new friends they had met since moving to Oak Ridge, and soon supper was in full swing.

Encircling the round table were thirty men and girls, and Nita casually looked them over. Directly opposite she recognized a new face strangely familiar. Where had she seen that man before? He had an almost impertinent smile, and, look where she would, their glances seemed always to cross.

Supper was over, and the guests were strolling about the grounds. The man with the familiar-strange face came up to Nita as she stood beneath a clump of lanterns.

"This is Miss Norcross, I believe," he said. "I am Mr. Hildredth. We were introduced early in the evening, but no doubt you did not catch my name. Have you seen the sunken lake of which Clyde is so proud?"

Once away from the crowd, they found a comfortable little seat along the water's edge, and the moonlight fell clear upon them.

"Gorgeous night, isn't it?" suggested Nita. She could not explain why she had this uncommon constrained feeling when with this man.

"Bully," he replied. "May I light a cigarette just to keep the bugs away?"

"You certainly may," agreed Nita.

"I wonder if you would think me frightfully rude," began Mr. Hildredth, "if I were to ask you where you ran against the locket you have on your neck, Miss Norcross. It's a perfect beauty. I have seen but one other like it, and that belonged to my mother."

Nita blushed and nervously twirled the locket which hung on a fine chain about her neck.

"Why, I bought it," she finally answered.

"Yes, of course, but where?"

The silence which followed was painful, and Hildredth continued:

"You see, my mother's locket was stolen along with a lot of other jewelry that my valet relieved me of about a year ago, and I've spent hundreds of dollars and a world of time trying to locate the stuff. What he took of mine I don't care a rap about, but my mother's keepsakes—well, you could understand that would be a different thing. In my mother's locket there is a picture of a child—a picture of me. Whom do you carry in yours, Miss Norcross?"

Hildredth waited several minutes for his answer. Slowly the girl took the locket from her throat and reached it to him.

"Open it," she almost whispered.

He did so and revealed the picture of a curly headed child of about six, and while Hildredth looked long at the picture the girl told the story of how she came by it.

"And isn't it absurd," she was saying, "I thought you were a thief that day when I saw you with the policeman."

"And I," said Hildreth, "though you were a society girl getting extra money to play the races or go to fortune tellers or some equally wicked dissipation." Then, changing his tone entirely, he continued: "I hate to ask the return of this, but mother valued it above price. But as she is now abroad I want you to show you hold me no ill will by putting it back on your throat and wearing it while you are at Oak Ridge. When we part"—

He extended the trinket to her, and his hand touched hers. Without argument she clasped the fine chain once more about her neck. Nothing was said by either, but Lawrence lighted another cigarette and bit hard.

"I think we had better join the crowd," said Nita, "or they'll be instituting a searching party for us."

The next days and for many days after during Nita's stay at Oak Ridge, Lawrence Hildredth found an excuse to run over in his motor or to sail over in his boat to the Clyde lodge. The last evening of Nita's visit had come, and she and Lawrence were once more sitting by the water's edge. Nearly a month had passed, and another moon had come to shed its rays upon Oak Ridge.

"Tomorrow I am going home," Nita said, "so I will give you back the locket tonight. Your mother will be home soon, too, I hear."

He took it from her with reluctant hand.

"Nita," Lawrence's voice was tenderness itself. "There is just one woman to whom my mother would give that locket—my wife. Will you take me, Nita? Take my locket and my love? Tell me, Nita, that you love me."

Nita looked straight into his eyes.

"Larry, dear, I do love you, and I always will."

He clasped the locket about her throat again, pledging it to her for life, and the kiss he received in payment seemed priceless.

From Welsh to Spanish.

A very [illegible] British government ordered that [illegible] be taught in Welsh schools. As a result, a colony of persecuted Welsh miners fled from the British tyranny and settled in the deserts of Patagonia. These men were heroes, and with most magnificent courage they dared to live in a desert where not a plant would grow, where the water was brackish and the heat intolerable. They were surrounded by wild tribes of hostile savages and made them warm friends; they were ruled by a foreign government and became loyal citizens.

Through long years of want and famine they never despaired. They have turned the desert into a beautiful fertile country, have become rich, number 3,000 people, have extended their string of settlements right across South America, own a paying railway and ship large crops of wheat, wool, ostrich feathers and guanaco skins.

They left Wales to escape the tyranny of the English language and now, rather than talk Welsh, they converse largely of their freedom in excellent Spanish.

Germs, Their Friends and Foes.

Germs are powerless to affect a healthy body in which the vital resistance is maintained by good habits of living. Alcohol, tobacco and other such drugs, whether narcotic or stimulative in their effects, are aids and comforts to our invisible enemies. Too much food, especially hearty food such as meat and beans, forms supplies for the commissary department of the enemy instead of for the brigades of white corpuscles. On the other hand, every [illegible] fresh, sun warmed air is a direct blow struck at our foes and on the side of our defenders. Every sip of pure water aids the forces of life. So, too, does every motion in walking, running and other exercises—when exercise is not excessive. Every mouthful of pure food adds fuel to the flame of life.—Success Magazine.

Making More Than a Living.

Nearly every man who work[illegible] steadily makes more than a living. During these slow times the men who have saved something appreciate what it is to have something laid away for a rainy day. A few cents a day soon counts up, and when savings are placed in a bank at a tidy interest the sum soon grows to proportions that make it a safeguard against want when work is not plentiful. Figure up how much more than a living you are making now, and place the difference in this bank. Four per cent. interest paid in savings department.

IDOLS OF THE HINDOOS

There Are Hundreds of Millions of Them in India.

THE FAME OF JUGGERNAUT.

This Idol Has Been Worshiped About Two Thousand Years, and His National Temple Is on the Sands of Puri—The Three Monster Cars.

If I were asked to describe India the first remark that would spring from my lips would be, "It is a land of idols." It would be impossible to compute the number of idols that there must be at the present time in India. The Hindoos pretend to have 333,000,000 gods, and these are represented by innumerable idols, so that we are quite bewildered with the thought of taking the census of the idols of India. The population of the whole Indian empire is now about 300,000,000, and possibly the country contains ten times as many idols as people.

Benares is the great center of the idol making business, though in all parts of India the trade flourishes. Potters the day through may be seen in the sacred city molding images of clay for temporary use. Sculptors also may be found producing representatives of the gods in stone or marble. Carpenters, moreover, make great wooden idols for the temples, and workers in metal—goldsmiths, coppersmiths and brass workers—turn out more or less highly finished specimens in their respective metals.

When speaking of idols it should be borne in mind that the images turned out by the potter, sculptor, carver or manufacturer are not considered sacred or fit to be worshiped until certain mystic words have been uttered over them by a priest. The ceremony of "the giving of life," as it is called, to the image is a very solemn affair, and when it is done the idol is regarded as holy and must ever afterward be approached and treated with the utmost reverence.

Out of the many millions of so called gods in India, all of whom are counted worthy of worship, three are regarded as specially sacred and form the Hindoo triad or trinity. They are respectively Brahma, Vishnu and Siva. Of those it is stated the second person of the trinity only has been represented on this earth by human incarnations. Through one or all of these gods the Hindoos believe they may obtain salvation. Brahma represents the way of salvation by wisdom, Vishnu by faith and Siva by works. It is immaterial which method is adopted, as they all lead to the same goal.

Juggernaut is perhaps the most famous name among all the Hindoo idols, inasmuch as his fame has gone forth into every land. His temple is situated on the sandy shores of Orissa, washed by the wild waves of the bay of Bengal. The worship of Juggernaut dates back nearly 2,000 years, and Orissa has been the holy land of the Hindoos from that time till the present day.

Sir William Hunter, who was one of the greatest authorities on things East Indian, says in a wonderfully graphic description of the temple of Juggernaut: "On the inhospitable sands of Puri, a place of [illegible] associations, the Hindoo religion and Hindoo superstitution have stood at bay for eighteen centuries against the world. Here is the national temple whither the people flock to worship from every province of India. There is the gate of heaven whither thousands of pilgrims come to die, lulled to this last sleep by the roar of the eternal ocean."

Well, I saw on one occasion that marvelous sight, the dragging of Juggernaut's car and the cars of his brother and sister. The three idols are inseparable, and ugly things they are, being nothing but huge logs of wood coarsely fashioned into human shape, but without arms or legs.

Juggernaut's car stands forty-one feet high and has fourteen enormous wheels. The other two cars are just a little smaller. The great cars have to be dragged a certain distance—half a mile or more from the temple—and the god will not allow horses or elephants to undertake the work, but calls upon his faithful worshipers to do it themselves. Immense ropes, or, rather, cables, are attached to the cars, and at the word of command from the priests thousands of men and even women and children rush forward and seize the ropes and range themselves in order and the next moment are straining and pulling at the ponderous conveyances, which at length move with a heavy, creaking noise.

Never shall I forget the sight. The road was filled with tens of thousands of lookers-on, all wild with excitement, and the fanatics who held the ropes were dragging the cars along with frenzied zeal. Every now and then there would be a stop that the men might rest, I supposed, but instead of resting they took to jumping in the air and to whirling themselves around like dancing dervishes and shouting at the top of their breath: "Victory! Victory to Juggernaut!"

Once on a time infatuated worshipers would throw themselves under the wheels of the mighty car that they might be crushed to death, counting it a privilege and a joy thus to perish. Some might do it today if the paternal British government did not provide against such catastrophes by taking all due precaution.—John J. Pool, B. D., F. R. G. S., in Los Angeles Times.

Queer Auctions.

A Dutch auction at Cape Town is frequently exciting. If a house is to be sold the auctioneer offers "50 golden sovereigns for the man who first bids £5,000." Nobody bids. A pause, and then "50 golden sovereigns for the man who first bids £4,900." This is kept up until a bid is secured. But it by no means follows that the house is sold to this bidder. No, the auctioneer is then at it again. Say that £4,400 is the first bid. The auctioneer cries, "There are 25 golden sovereigns for the first man who has the courage to bid £4,000." Perhaps no one has it. Then £25 is offered for a £4,550 bid. If there is eventually no bid above the £4,400, the man who made that bid is saddled with the house. Otherwise he pockets his bonus and gets off free of it all.—Westminster Gazette.

Gone to Hongkong.

Some time ago a large tea shop was opened in a town near London. To attract customers it was announced that each purchaser of a pound of tea would receive a check for a shilling to buy goods on a certain date. The proprietor did a flourishing trade till the day came for the checks to be presented. Crowds of customers came and were dreadfully disappointed to see the shutters down and on them a big poster, which read:

"Our compliments to our customers, and we beg to state that we have gone to Hongkong for more tea."—London Express.

Mannish.

Mr. Dubley—How awfully mannish she is! Miss Smart—She is, indeed. Mr. Dubley—Yes, and the funny part of it is she thinks people admire her for being that way. It's queer she doesn't realize that people are only laughing at her. Miss Smart—Well, she's mannish even to that extent.—Philadelphia Press.

Explicit.

One of Manchester's sextons in making his report of burials is explicit to a commendable degree. For instance, such entries as this occur:

"Died, John Green, male; aged three days; unmarried."—London Tit-Bits.

HERE AND THERE

Arden, the Meadow Lands Mine company's town at its mine a mile north of Arden station, on the Charliers railway, was visited by a big blaze at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. The fire originated in a house occupied by Frank Nitchel and family, but what caused it does not appear to be known.

John H. King, a life long resident of Fayette county, and a well known farmer of South Union township, died yesterday aged 88 years. Deceased was born on the Coley farm May 8, 1820. He was one of the pioneers of Lower Fayette county and was engaged for years as a wagoner on the old National pike between Uniontown and Cumberland.

A bitter legal fight will likely be made to save Mrs. Ida Palmer, a Canonsburg woman against whom a formal charge of murder may be made for the death of her husband, Frank Palmer, who was fatally shot Sunday afternoon. Yesterday James B. Scope, a brother of Mrs. Palmer, was in Washinngton and employed Attorney Alex M. Templeton, as council for the defense, in case charges are preferred against Mrs. Palmer. Scope comes from Clearfield county. He is a justice of the peace and resides at Bluehall.

Ten townships of Washintgon county have taken creditable action in establishing high schools. Special appropriations are due all such institutions, providing certain provisions are followed in the choice of a principal, and the amount of money appropriated is governed also by the length of the course adopted.

Monongahela's public schools will open on Monday, September 14, two weeks later than had been the original intention. However, on account of Old Home week during the week beginning September 7, it was decided to postpone the opening. Promotions will be made on Monday and Tuesday of the opening week and new pupils will be received Wednesday. Everything will then be in readiness for the school routine of recitations, etc.

It is stated that since the idleness of the Carnegie mills at Donora rents in that town have suffered a material reduction. In some instances houses that rented for $25 a month have been cut to $13.

William. Vactor, a young colored man of South Canonsburg, lays claim to being the champion groundhog hunter of this community. Out of 27 goundhogs seen on six hunting trips he killed 24 groundhogs. There is a ready market for the animals in town, and they sell at from 35 cents to 50 cents each.

Considerable justifiable complaint is heard from time to time about the neglect of the supervisors in this part of the country to provide the finger boards that the law calls for at the various crossings. Not one in ten of the crossings or forks of roads has anything that will direct the stranger traveler when he arrives at the parting of the ways. In this country where the roads run helter skelter without fixed directions a stranger goes but a few miles until he is completely at sea.

Kiefer-Lang.

David Kiefer and Miss Clara Lang of Charleroi were married Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Rice at his office on McKean avenue. They will reside here.

Mrs. R. L. Barnhart and daughter Ada have left for New York City for a short visit.

The Careful Scots.

A Scot and his wife came to London, and the worthy pair were in a hundred fears concerning the diabolical ingenuity of London thieves.

As they took their first walk down the Strand the husband whispered of a sudden hoarsely in her ears, "Janet, wumman, hast thou got thy teeth feexed feermly in thy gums?"

"Na, na," she answered; "A'm no sich a fule! I've left 'em safely leckit awa' in the portmonty!"—London Chronicle.
